V. CAPITAL MARKET INDICATORS

Mr. Edser Trinidad rendered the report on the Market Outlook (Views and Strategies During Covid-19), highlights of which are shown as follows:

- Market remains volatile as investors react on every data point that is being published
- PH bond prices have also weakened on FED rate hike fears
- High volatility is also observed in other ASEAN markets
- Foreign investors are still on a net selling position
- Market upgraded 2023 EPS outlook due to healthy 1Q results
- Revenue growth was not the sole driver in 1Q
- Margins seen to improve as some cost of inputs have started to ease
- Crude oil prices easing despite OPEC production cut due to concerns on economic slowdown of US and China
- Cost of electricity may soften due to a drop in one of the country's major source of fuel, coal
- Ave inflation outlook raised and expect to see another rate hike by the BSP
- After reaching a 14-year high last January, inflation is now slowing down and core inflation has also shown some deceleration.

➤ Outlook (2H23)

Equities – We expect the PSEi to post a 5% to 10% YoY growth Consumption-led growth as inflation recedes 2H23 margins should improve due to easing pressure on cost Cyclical such as the property sector may bounce on better outlook on office vacancy rates

Fixed Income - Local yields are expected to trend lower in 2H23 as inflation and growth slows down Potential upside for the fixed income market will be highly dependent on trajectory of inflation and policy rates Yield curve expected to steepen/ normalize in 2H23 if central banks lower their policy rates

The Board took note and thanked Mr. Trinidad for his report.
